60 YEARS

Vice-Chancellor's graduation message

There are moments in life that stay with us forever, and graduation is one of them. It marks far more than the completion of a degree. It is the culmination of years of hard work, perseverance, sacrifice and personal growth, and a celebration of the challenges overcome along the way. Graduation stands as a testament to the determination, resilience and commitment that have brought you to this moment.

At the same time, it represents a crossroads, a chance to reflect on how far you have come while looking ahead to a future filled with possibility. Graduation opens the door to new opportunities, experiences and ambitions that have the power to shape a lifetime.

Today marks a bold new chapter. While there is genuine excitement in seeing your name on your graduation parchment and celebrating all that you have achieved, the true significance of this moment lies in knowing that you have acquired knowledge, skills and fresh perspectives that will empower you to make a meaningful difference in the world, wherever your career may take you.

Whether that is in hospitals, boardrooms, classrooms or across countless other workplaces and industries, you now possess the opportunity to contribute, to lead and to create positive change in communities. That is the real promise of graduation: not only recognising what you have accomplished but also celebrating the impact you are now equipped to make.

You are now among more than 145,000 Flinders University graduates who have aspired, dreamed and achieved, and you will no doubt go on to change professions, industries and communities for the better through your ideas, expertise and leadership.

This year we are celebrating Flinders University's 60th anniversary. When Flinders first opened its doors in 1966, its purpose was to create opportunity through education and empower people to improve the lives of others. Sixty years on, that independent spirit still defines us.

As we celebrate our past, we're focused firmly on the future. Through Agenda 2035 Impact. With Purpose., we have set ourselves a bold goal: to change 10 million lives for the better by 2035.

That is a future and an ambition which you are now part of.

The value of higher education lies not only in what you know, but in your ability to apply that knowledge with insight and judgement. Your postgraduate program with Flinders and Nankai Universities has not only developed your knowledge and skills, but also strengthened your capacity to think critically, analyse problems and, when appropriate, challenge assumptions and explore new possibilities.

The Nankai-Flinders relationship is among our most valued and respected international collaborations, and we are proud of the opportunities this enduring partnership provides students to take their careers to the next level.

Our partnership began 26 years ago with the Master of Arts in International Relations in Economy and Trade. A total of 69 students graduated from this inaugural course. Now, more than 20 years later, our three courses with Nankai University have produced more than 9,800 graduates. Today, you join a community of graduates whose expertise, innovation and leadership are making a difference across China and around the world.

As you embark on your next journey, we hope you will remain part of our community. Flinders University places immense value in maintaining a connection with alumni and supporting you in what we hope will be a lifelong love of learning.

On behalf of Flinders University, I congratulate you on earning your degree and I'm delighted to welcome you as a valued member of the Nankai-Flinders alumni community. May you be inspired to always strive to make the world a better place, and may your stories inspire the next generation of Flinders students to imagine what's possible.

Professor Colin J Stirling
President and Vice-Chancellor

Professor Colin J Stirling
President and Vice-Chancellor Flinders University

Congratulations!

You are now part of an impressive group of more than 145,000 Flinders University graduates from across 130 countries who are finding their place, leaving their mark and making a difference around the world.

Leverage your degree long after graduation by tapping into this powerful network, including the 9000+ Nankai alumni, and make connections wherever you may travel.

Keeping you updated on news and opportunities

As a Flinders graduate, you will now receive our monthly alumni e-newsletter – keep an eye out for eNCOUNTER in your inbox, it contains relevant news, opportunities, events and alumni stories. And don't forget to update us if you move or change email address, that way we can let you know about events and opportunities in your location.

Share your story

We all have unique life stories and we would love to hear about yours as you follow your career path. Over the next year, or in the next decade, inspire the next generation of students by sharing what your next steps were beyond Flinders University and how you achieved your career goals.

We look forward to staying connected

We are so excited for your next move after you graduate, but we also want to continue to engage with you, inspire you and help you reach your career goals into the future.

Staying connected is an important way for us to let you know about Flinders and Nankai University Alumni Network activities, professional development opportunities, reunions and events in your location. You can stay connected by updating your contact details whenever you move or change jobs. Fill in the online form or contact the Alumni Relations Team.

Graduation ceremonies

The Graduation Ceremony

The ceremony is an important day in the University year and a proud day in the life of those who are graduating.

The graduation is the culmination of years of study and is the occasion on which the University formally awards certificates and diplomas and confers degrees upon those students who have completed their studies at the University over the past year.

The ceremony is an exciting blend of old and new; a ceremony steeped in tradition in which many of the customs and much of the regalia dates from many hundreds of years and the earliest universities, while the graduates represent the latest in ideas, technologies and expression.

Academic dress is part of the rich heritage of universities. The beginning of the ceremony sees the staff of the University show their pride and support for the new graduates by wearing academic dress and official robes in the academic procession. When presented with their academic Testamur, the graduates also wear the academic dress.

Master of Arts (International Relations in Economy and Trade)

The Master of Arts (International Relations in Economy and Trade) (MAIRET) has been offered in China by Flinders University in partnership with Nankai University since 2000.

The program is taught by staff from the University's College of Business, Creative Arts, Law and Social Sciences in association with Nankai University. The MAIRET equips students with cutting-edge knowledge and skills in International Relations focusing on international political economy, international business, finance, and trade. It has a particular emphasis on the economic and trade relationships in the Asia-Pacific Region and the political and economic implications of the rise of East Asian economies in this digital era. Students undertaking the MAIRET course with Flinders University are taking part in an enterprise which is truly international, not simply in terms of its intrinsic content but also in its overseas availability and recognition. As Chinese business is increasingly moving up the value chain and rapidly going global, the course is particularly intended for business managers, government officials, and nonprofit leaders who aim to increase their international savvy. Postgraduate university credentials in International Relations are valuable for graduates who seek professional recognition and employment in international public affairs, international banking, international business and trade, diplomacy and foreign affairs, journalism and related areas.

Master of Educational Leadership and Management

The Master of Educational Leadership and Management is a postgraduate coursework program offered by Flinders University. The program is taught by staff from the University's College of Human Sciences and Culture, in association with Nankai University, China. The degree is intended for individuals in leadership positions within schools, colleges or universities wanting to obtain a formal leadership and management qualification; and/or senior staff in schools, colleges or universities wanting to move into a leadership and management role. The course aims to critically explore how leaders build human capacity to meet the current and future challenges of their environment; investigate how an organisation's people can be encouraged to become lifelong learners while contributing to the success of the organisation; and engage students in learning that integrates theory with practice, action with reflection, and questions with investigation. Postgraduate university credentials in leadership and management are valuable for graduates who seek professional recognition and employment in schools, colleges, universities and other educational organisations.

Master of Hospital Administration

The Flinders University Master of Hospital Administration (MHA) award has been taught in China in partnership with Nankai University since October 2003. The MHA program is equivalent to the Master of Health Administration offered on campus at Flinders University. Both programs are delivered by the same Health Care Management team and are re-accredited by the Australasian College of Health Service Management (ACHSM) in September 2026. The MHA provides students with a range of generic management skills as well as a deep understanding of issues facing hospital managers working in health systems abroad and in China. The MHA program has successfully combined expertise from Nankai University staff and local experts in hospital management, with the experience of international visiting experts on health care management from Australia.

The program has also managed to blend Chinese and Western teaching methods. The use of adult learning methods and small group work to discuss management problems in the Chinese health system has been particularly successful. The MHA is particularly relevant to hospital executives in China at a time when the country is facing major health system reforms. Chinese hospitals face significant challenges in the areas of financing, rural health, risk management and workforce development in the context of changing consumer expectations and rapidly evolving technological innovation.

Over the past 22 years Nankai University and Flinders University staff have worked closely together to make the MHA program a success. In the process a strong and enduring relationship has developed between staff of Health Care Management at Flinders and staff of the Faculty of Economy and Society Development at Nankai. China is a major global player and a strategically important trading partner of Australia. In a small, but not insignificant way, the MHA contributes to the relationship between the two countries. It is hoped that MHA graduates will find further opportunities to strengthen these international links though trade and professional development. For our Australian lecturer's participation in the MHA program has been a rewarding and enriching experience. We hope that MHA graduates will remain in contact with our academic staff throughout their professional life as alumni of Flinders University.
